The Manifest Based

Machine Translated by Google

“Modern society has exchanged the Father, the only true God, for the idolatry of reason. He dethroned Christ and in his place welcomed the false redeemer called freedom. Finally, in place of the Holy Spirit, he cheers the false prophetess of his new god, science. Thus dies a civilization.” - I myself, the author of the work, Anti.

Preface:

Hello, dear reader! My name... shouldn't be said for obvious reasons that will become clear at the end of the booklet, for now, just call me Anti.

This is just a nickname I'm called by my virtual friends, screen we can say, on twitter. I thought it convenient to leave it as my definitive pseudonym.

I can tell you that I am Roman Catholic, Brazilian too, with great pride. I'm just another boy with low self-esteem who dreams of a better world, like any other inhabitant of tupiniquim lands. I won't go into more detail about myself, that alone is enough.

Why is "Manifest Based" the name of this booklet? For example, "based" is a slang that circulates mostly among people who are dissatisfied with the current world.

Machine Translated by Google

Most of them are very attached to the great deeds and names of the past, asking for nothing more than a return to tradition and rejection of this modern and chaotic world. I am part of this thinking and why will be explained throughout the booklet.

But what is the meaning of the term itself? Being "based" would sound in Portuguese something like being grounded, being right, being firm in your convictions. Therefore, it is concluded that the saints of the Church are based, leaders such as Getúlio Vargas, Antônio Salazar, Francisco Franco, Primo de Rivera and Corneliu Codreanu were also based. You and I can be too!
We can have values and transmit them, we can be convinced in our thoughts and attitudes.

The word may sound funny to the ears, but without a doubt, the content that I will deal with in this booklet is not funny at all. None of this is a joke, it's a serious matter and I'll try to treat it as such... not that that prevents me from trying to make you laugh in certain moments of relaxation.
With the term properly explained, let's proceed.

Let it be clear that I seek through the work to position myself and expose myself on various controversial topics, therefore, it is very likely that many will not agree with my words, I ask them to be mature enough to interpret and judge them without fuss or fuss.

Understand: much of what you will see here will be taken as retrograde, old-fashioned and… by many, as madness. To believe that there was something better in the past is to be crazy today...

Anyway, with everything very well explained in my view, the reader is now ready to start reading, I really hope you like it and I will always be open to corrections. May God bless you abundantly.
Enjoy!

Thank you note to collaborators:

Nothing you will read in this booklet would be possible, or of the same quality, if it weren't for two people in particular. I consider any thank you note insufficient to show how grateful I am for the help I have received.

I developed the idea of the manifesto, I wrote it and thought about every detail in a clear way, for the better understanding of the reader. However, I think that without the research carried out and the perfect revision made throughout the text, the message would be totally different or at least it would not be as clear as it is now.

I leave here then my most sincere thanks to my great friend, the pseudonym Ragnarok, for the research carried out and for the help given to me in the collection of information and sources to better substantiate my theses. Without your help, I believe that the foundation of the content would not be good enough, so I thank you from the bottom of my heart. I took up a lot of your time, comrade, but I don't think it was in vain.

I would also like to thank my great friend Anchieta (also a pseudonym) for reviewing the work. I can say that your correction made "magic" with the words, managed to make the manifest not only more formal but also more standardized. I hope that with your modifications, many more people will be convinced by what I have written.

There is no way to thank you for your help, there is no way to repay both of you for your support, I just offer you this short note of thanks and I am sure that none of this would be possible without you.

A big hug!

Anti.

Note from collaborators:

Ragnarok: The Anti sure is a good person. I noticed this from the first time I talked to him, he is also a person with the willpower to change the world and at the moment he tried to put that into practice with this manifesto.

I read things I didn't agree with, but on the other hand, I also read beautiful things, great truths that added something to me. Read with great attention and affection, as it is not something written as a joke or mockery.

It is a good work done by a good person who will have a lot of interesting things to tell you, dear reader. I am happy to have contributed in some way to the manifesto. Thanks to Anti for the opportunity.

God bless you!

Anchieta: Anti gave me the opportunity to revise and correct my first work. When there was little left to finish it, he invited me so that I could revise it, at first I hesitated because I didn't want to assume such responsibility.

Machine Translated by Google

However, after finishing reading the entire manifesto, the author received a resounding "yes" from me, I needed to participate in this and here I am, after almost two months of correction and repetitive readings, proud to say that I had the opportunity of being able to add something to this wonderful booklet.

I confess, I am not an expert, much less a man trained in Portuguese, but I believe I was good enough and I assume that I may have made mistakes throughout the texts. I am open to corrections and I earnestly ask that none of these probable errors impact the credibility of the message transmitted by my great friend Anti.

I may not agree with everything that has been written here, but know that the author is a good man and, like me, is a Brazilian, Catholic, passionate about the nation and the faith. I invite you, dear reader, to continue reading and I wish God to bless you abundantly.

Glory to Brazil!

Just another booklet written by yet another passionate young man in a chaotic and decadent world, here I will expose a good part of my argumentation capacity and consequently of "palpitation" on varied subjects, without great pretensions. I will try to be as direct as possible, each chapter will deal with a theme, all somehow related, something that you will probably understand later. I just try to express my views.

Chapter I
The world sunk in sin

It is clear to the eyes of any common observer (and who has the least of common sense) that our civilization has never been so steeped in problems as it is today, not only in economic terms, but mainly in matters of spirit and morals. Look at the news, the immensity of corruption of both the flesh and the soul, the normalization of prostitution and even pedophilia, abortion, the profusion of "new" genres, the destruction of churches, state atheism and the destruction of the very family cell, all this surrounds the media and the public environment. This is the common evil from which all nations, small or large, suffer, however, this is not something that we can say is just current, it has been architected and developed for centuries and that finally reached its peak... it came out of the sewers in which it was gestate

Let's do a little imagination exercise: Let's suppose there is a tree, leafy and full of fruits, its shadow reaches a vast area and all the animals live on it, even if not harmoniously, but are inspired by its roots, deep and ancient, as a source of wisdom and renewal. Imagine now that there is a group of vultures, rotten, with long and crooked beaks, full of rancor, who want to see it all perish.

They can't just cut down the tree, that would be impossible, it's so thick and imposing, it would never fall. However, there is a way to upset that society... the vultures' hatred has been fed since the tree's birth, of allies they have in droves, for decades they seeped worms and fungus among the fruits, they grew and spread, thirsting for sap, they spread unnatural thoughts and feelings of discord.
By means of tricks, they separate the animals into intricate systems, making them have the same interest, that of turning against the tree itself.

Finally, the fruits rot and are devoured by worms, the fungus spreads throughout the land, making animals crazy and perverted, hungry. The animals, in search of a supposed “enlightened majority” move away from their home, forget and even deny their roots, start to feed on the garbage provided by the vultures, with time, the few who rise up against the rot are silenced and slandered… chaos ensues, until all that was beautiful in that land is desecrated. Until the animals themselves become like worms.

Machine Translated by Google

This exercise seeks to explain in a simple way what happens in our society. Comparing humans to animals and other things like vultures may seem silly, but if you understand the context and the comparison, it gives a pretty self-explanatory picture of our condition.

Maybe I will use these comparisons and refer to some specific characters during the continuity of the text, to avoid certain problems. Therefore, with the presentation of the general problem duly given, let's move on to some particulars, or means by which the "vultures" act.

Chapter II

Pornography and its evil industry

First the flesh is corrupted and then the spirit is broken. What better way to distance human beings from God than by promising to provide countless carnal pleasures?

Sites that promote pornography, that encourage sinful activities, swarm gushing from all corners, without pity or mercy, dragging souls into a spiral of perdition and indecency. Major drug dealers with political connections in countless places spread a horrendous poison that destroys entire families. This is a sign of how sick this world is, how rotten our society is, often the fight against these activities is neglected or even denied! Governments around the world refrain from taking down such sites and cartels in the name of a supposed "freedom for happiness" or for mere economic interests!

Millions of souls are lost to these evils while many believe these activities are mere leisure, or as most today say: completely normal.
Politicians and other organizations propagate the discourse of drug use liberation, as if it were a right, as if they did not cause harm! Even if one uses the scarecrow of "medicinal use" it is obvious that such groups want the invasion of drugs at all levels of society.

What about pornography owners? Cases abound of forced activities and even human trafficking, rape and pedophilia. Behind this propagated "pleasant and dignified life", there is a sea of blood, pain and obscenity. Countless studies only confirm how harmful the plague of this addiction is and even different mental problems are consequences of the consumption of pronography. Let me cite some information that will support my thesis:

• ON PORNOGRAPHY IN THE HUMAN MIND:

"We found an important negative link between the act of viewing pornography for several hours a week and the volume of gray matter in the direct striatum of the brain. As well as the activity of the prefrontal cortex" write the scientists of the Max Planck Institute for Development Human in Berlin. "These effects could include changes in neuronal plasticity resulting from intense stimulation in the pleasure center," added the study, published in the online edition of the American Medical Association's journal JAMA Psychiatry.

• ABOUT HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN THE WORLD OF PORNOGRAPHY:

"The women used in the production of commercial pornography in the United States of America are often subjected to violence and coercion during filming. Often they complain, try to stop filming or give up before it even starts. Their complaints are ignored and they are pressured by their agents and directors to continue. Their experiences with coercion and the traps they fall into often fall within the definition of trafficking in persons for the purpose of sexual exploitation. Most women enter the porn industry without knowing what they will have to submit to. Like most victims of human trafficking for the purpose of sexual exploitation, they need money and are looking for opportunities, agents, directors and producers take advantage of these women, often very young. Her first experiences with commercial pornography are often brutal and traumatic… Madelyne knew nothing of the business she was called into, but she was eager to make money because she was in debt. She told her agent that she had no limits and would do anything. She signed a year contract, then said she had no idea what that meant. She was terrified when she arrived at the studio to film her first scene, she tells us, "I tried to give up, I wanted to go home and not do any pornography." They said she had signed a contract, so she couldn't back out. "I was threatened, they said that if I didn't do the scene, they would sue me and I would lose a lot of money... I had violent sex scenes and I was beaten by an actor, I asked them to stop, but they didn't stop until I started crying and spoil the scene."

Madelyn's description shows that she was coerced, even if the victim initially consented, she could very well have withdrawn consent and the activity stopped. If your desire is ignored, there is sex trafficking.

Alexa wrote: "In my first film, I was treated very violently by three men. They punched me, forced my vomit with their penises and tossed me around like I was a ball! I was in pain, bruised and could barely walk, I felt burning and aching inside of me, I couldn't pee and trying to have a bowel movement was out of the question."

It's a trap! That's literally it, a cunning mousetrap that traps anyone who falls into it. What many think to be a life of luxury (and lust) turns out to be a forced and cursed tragedy. There is no lack of cases of women dragged from their countries by traffickers, who sell their bodies in another part of the world, and what's more, with the internet this becomes increasingly accessible and easier to propagate.

One thing that spreads a lot in the "NoFap" movement (no masturbation, in Portuguese) is that someone involved in this problem should "seek other distractions for the body" or do other activities, I do not detract from the merit of this since it is well founded, I really believe that this helps, however, my dear reader, it is not reasonable to believe that doing some exercise and going to the gym will get you over the demon that is pornography. Not alone.

Saint Padre Pio said that our best weapon against the tricks of the evil one was prayer, the Holy Rosary. And yes, I use her teachings for these cases, without the help of Maria Santissima you will most likely fail. Pray, ask Our Mother for help, implore Our Lord and all this sin will be alleviated, they will be like chains being broken!

The true way to free yourself from this and many other addictions is to pray. Going to the gym helps and should be done, but the devil doesn't care about your muscles or your health, he really wants to ruin your soul and a gym won't help you save it.

Look how convenient, precisely the act of praying is discarded or seen as too long! They claim they are too busy to dedicate an hour and a half a day to prayer… my dear, Saint Padre Pio prayed 33 rosaries a day (11 Rosaries), celebrated masses and even attended confessions. What do you do that is so important that prevents you from asking for the help of Mary Most Holy?

Well, I think I've already said a lot about pornography, the reader who hasn't convince of the evil that it brings to the body, soul and those involved in its production that research and read more about it, because what has been shown here is just the tip of the iceberg.

Chapter III

Introduced all things in sex

There is not much to be said about this topic, it is part of our daily life, but I concluded that it would be appropriate to deal with it since it can be considered such a problem, it is about the excessive sexualization of absolutely everything in our society. At first it seems something banal, however, a deeper analysis about it can reveal how purposeful such a sexualization of reality is.

Let's do one more imagination exercise: A movie is playing on television, some plot taken from a book for example. In the middle of a Sunday afternoon, the children are in the living room, the family is perhaps even together, everything unfolds in a normal and healthy way, until, unnecessarily, the characters begin to relate more intimately. So we thought that the director wanted to show that these characters have a very close relationship!
Even so, an explicit sex scene is in no way convenient for this, which will only earn disapproving glances among this family, probably the television being turned off, and will not add anything to the script of the work itself.

This is just another simple example of the thousands that we have today, streaming platforms produce children's drawings dealing with topics such as the infinite genders of the LGBT movement and the normalization of transsexuality, advertisements for products, without any relation, seek to trivialize heterosexuality and promote homosexuality.

Liberal-progressive propaganda is simply an expert at being subtle and at the same time brazen at the same time, they induce children to sexualize their lives but disguise it all as marketing or something part of modernity. It is possible to see an advance in the prematurity with which they are anticipating this diabolical project in people's lives.

Think about it, a few decades ago the simple act of a boy walking hand in hand with a girl he had not yet married was not well regarded by parents or elders, it was considered lack of modesty, today, we see children from just over 10 years dancing to completely obscene and sexualized songs even accompanied by "partners" whether they are of the opposite gender or not. The least to be expected was the disapproval of those responsible for these children, but what you see is the opposite, the stimulus.

It seems to me that all this normalization of lack of decorum among young people and even children has only one sad and miserable end... the normalization of pedophilia. Perhaps we should pay more attention to the billionaires who fund such content, platforms and campaigns of the kind. What kind of human being would finance (not wanting to point fingers) pornography platforms already scandalized by the posting of videos involving minors?

Wait, soon sex education projects in childhood will start to appear around the world and don't think that these will have the same purpose that the media propagate. This theme, like the theme of "genders" I will deal with, can be compared to a lion cub being fed.

Small, it looks docile and worthy of affection, when grown, the steak will no longer be enough and its caretaker's arm will look much more appetizing. Like the lion, the progressive sexualization of society begins to grow little by little, in Sunday programs, in school dances, in internet videos, in the theater and in cinema films, everywhere you see bodies, bodies and more bodies. .

As proof of my thesis, look at the relationships of young people today in day, not only theirs, but many of their parents as well, futile relationships based on physical attraction and so-called "making out". Streaming services and sexualized advertising are very well funded, their backers are often a little sneaky. It becomes increasingly necessary, therefore, to appeal to the principles of chastity, modesty and modesty, as opposed to lust, debauchery and vulgarity.

If someone asked me what my "fetish" would be, I would confidently answer: True love. It could be that because you feel out of place in this world you think you will never find such love, allow me to be a love advisor, don't give up hope, I'm sure there is at least one person on earth who would love someone clumsy like you .

Chapter IV

From feminism, women against men

"We will pit your women against your men and then destroy the strength of their families." - Helen Herz Cohen, feminist leader.

Interesting phrase, isn't it? Following the analogy of the first chapter, this such a Helen would be one of the vultures I speak of in the course of my words.

After this small observation, I continue the analysis. I believe that the Feminist Movement is the most pernicious movement among all those arising from the liberal rebellion in modernity, both in theory and in its authors and mainly in the practical consequences of all this, such as the destruction of femininity and the advancement of normalization of "logics " abortionists. They say: "Ah! But feminism only seeks equality between men and women in our society".

This would probably be said by a supporter of the movement, my answer is clear: There are natural differences between men and women, to put them on an equal footing would not only be absurd but also unnatural.

Yes, dear reader, you may be surprised but God created men and women with different functions in society, this is clearly seen, but there are those who still don't believe it. Please do not think that I think that men are superior to women or the other way around, I would not only be lying if I said that but going against my principles, each one has their own role defined by the Creator and that is not up to us to change.

The male role is to provide for the household, defend it and, together with his wife, hold the household together. The female role complements that of the male, as it would be (with the grace of God) to bear their children, take care of the home harmoniously and ensure the moral education of the little ones.

They are different roles and, in short, simple, but alone or separately they do not get the same results and often fail. united with grace marriage were made to add and then multiply, which guarantees the success of one of the most beautiful divine works, the family, in order to educate them in the path of Truth and with the holy and obligatory support of the Church, to reach eternal salvation.

A strong family, centered on harmony and faith, is indestructible... and exactly for this reason, that the family is the main target of the vultures, if you attack the family, you attack the foundations of a society, if you pervert the family, you pervert that society. I think it is possible to divide this action into a few steps, these would be:

1. Defame harmony as if it were something created by man, a mistake that it must be fixed by new thinkers, by science. Discard, of course, all influence of the Church in the family cell, if possible even attack religion itself.

two. Initiate the subversion of family ideals, encourage and normalize adultery, divorce, same-sex marriage, aiming finally at the destruction of holy matrimony.

3. Turn the two protagonists of the institution against each other, women against men and men against women. Make both see this union as a burden, something imposed and wrong, that they want "freedom and flexibility" in relationships.

4. Spread it now that child-rearing itself is unnecessary and that the mere pleasure must be sought as something superior, causing them to avoid having children, normalizing the use of contraceptives.

5. Pick the link possibly most susceptible to outside influences and attack it strongly, encourage sin, make the majority (of them in this case) avoid marriage and they, the men, will follow suit. Propagate a perverted model of beauty and even in culture make such a style to be valued above chastity, make chastity itself something undesirable because it is retrograde.

6. With the help of pornography, circulate new relationship models, encourage them in opposition to the traditional family. Spread theories of a "social construction" about "genders" and pervert the very meaning of being a man or being a woman.

7. In the height of cruelty, make them kill their own children in favor of some individual interest whatsoever, in exchange for independence. Let entire generations be exterminated in the name of some purely false right.

The initially subtle and gradually overt rubbish of the Feminist Movement is exactly that, a total lack of logical sense to stop with the natural order in every way. It's no use trying to negotiate with this

Machine Translated by Google

Prague. The first wave came, the suffragists, society accepted it, it was something fair, the second, more aggressive and libertine, society erroneously accepted, after all: "What harm can it cause to give freedom to women, they should even be sexually free, after all, we all must". And then came the third wave, with abortion, gender ideology and anti-Catholicism, feminism now shows itself to be the cancer it always was without the use of any mask and nobody knows how that happened! How did he "radicalize" himself so much!

The issue is actually quite simple, just as a "magician" hypnotizes his victims to then devour them, feminism enchanted society with suffrage and sexual freedom to then subvert women, femininity and marriage itself. I declare myself against feminism in all its forms, not because it "threatens male power" (which in itself is already a fallacy) but because its aim is to destroy one of the most sacred and beautiful things in a society, the maternal figure, pure and careful. Of course, in this process it also destroys even the male figure. It transforms women, in the short or long term, into sexualized objects, and this is solely the fault of feminism coming from liberal thought, not from the traditional model of the family. To say the opposite is not absurd, it is explicit ignorance.

Feminism must die in the gutter! Now, was it successful? Yes, unfortunately, and a lot… is there a solution? Of course yes, there always is, that those who follow the Truth and His Church keep their families firm against the adversities and propaganda of the world, always praying for others who unfortunately fall under these influences. It is so rotten, so degenerate, but it is reality. The next chapter will portray a disgusting, absurd and hideous reality that is a consequence of this movement that claims to "fight for female emancipation" in the world.

The abortion!

Chapter V

Abortion, the profane right

"When you see a soul that announces abortion as a benign deed, you will know that the prince of darkness reigns in her and her eternity is for the moment in the book of death." - Saint Padre Pio of Pietrelcina.

What was the greatest genocide in the history of the human race? What was the most effective killing method ever put into practice? You probably immediately thought of those massacres that are often the focus of media attention and debate. Everyone has watched some of those huge stories, with some historian, reporter or contractor talking about such events.

Undoubtedly these genocides plucked thousands of people from the face of earth, are a wound in our history, do not think that I want to minimize or deny any of these events, the only thing that I want to expose here is, firstly, the hypocrisy of some who appear in tears talking about events like those of the 40s and the at the same time defend the "right" to death in the womb.

- 57 million. Fifty-seven million lives.

The number above was the total number of abortions performed just last year, 2020, in the midst of the covid-19 pandemic.

- There are 156,165 abortions in just one day.
- That's 6,506 abortions in just one hour
- That's 108 abortions in just one minute.
- An average of 2 babies per second.

Doctors, police, engineers, artists, politicians, writers, painters, priests, scientists, lawyers, all prevented from seeing the light of day. None of them asked what they wanted, murdered without even knowing the crime they committed.

Machine Translated by Google

First of all, I think I should clarify a crucial point! what the medium journalistic, in short, supported by a class of physicians completely financed by world investors, he only calls it a fetus, it is a human being, a new soul, even though the body is not yet fully developed, it is undeniably that this still will develop, therefore, to subject a member of our species to the character of non-human because it has not yet reached the so-called necessary "conditions", is not only illogical, but is also the lowest manifestation of ignorance and cruelty.

Embryology itself defines that already at conception (or fertilization) an embryo with a totally new genetic load, he's alive, he's human. Well, this simply nullifies the main argument of the abortionist movement, which defines abortion as legal since the victim would not be alive until a certain time.

A girl in my high school once had the audacity to compare a baby to a kind of "appendix" of the pregnant woman, just because it depends on her to survive, therefore, it would not be a living being (according to her). But then I replied: "A bacterium often depends on us to survive and, even so, it is considered a living being! What, in your opinion, would be the difference between something that is alive and something that is not alive? Since you compare a baby to an appendix".

Obviously, I got no response other than a disapproving look. A baby inside the womb is not a living being, while in Brazil there is no corruption. Abortion is a right, just like murder is also a right, since in the end, both have their "justifications" for it, don't they?

The fact that can be drawn from all this is the following, those who support abortion can be classified into three types:

1. The scoundrels themselves, who are fully aware of the reality of things, know the methods and everything that is done in the clinics. They declare support for the cause out of sheer demonic connivance and inhumanity.

two. Idiots or useful ignoramuses, who are taken as maneuver mass by the first group, are those who have no idea what abortion is really about, but support it because it seems appropriate or fair to women.

3. Finally, those who say they are against but support him in cases of rape, risk to the mother's life, etc. Either out of innocence or because of the force of the herd, in order not to be excluded by the first and second groups, they submit not to say that they are 100% against it.

Machine Translated by Google

My aim here is to open the eyes of the second and third groups. As stupid as the abortionist logic is, it always wins supporters due to its quick talk of freedom. As for the first group, nothing can be done, they know what they support and the only solution for this is the bars.

• The methods performed by abortion clinics.

1. A suction abortion is one in which the cervix is widened. uterus in order to introduce a special tube capable of sucking – at a speed about 29 times greater than that of a vacuum cleaner – the baby into a container. It goes without saying that such an action dismembers the little arms and legs, reducing him to something unrecognizable bathed in blood. This abortive method is, as far as is known, widely used.

two. Abortion by dilation and curettage occurs through the introduction of a curved and sharp blade (the curette) inside the uterus to, first, scrape its walls and then cut the unborn child into pieces and remove the parts. In some clinics, the baby is reassembled piece by piece on a table in order to make sure that no part is left in the woman's uterus capable of causing infection.

3. Saline abortion consists of a four-inch syringe that pierces the woman's abdominal wall and then the amniotic sac, 60 ml of amniotic fluid is then withdrawn, and 200 ml of strongly hypertonic saline solution is injected in its place. Such a saline solution aspirated and swallowed by the baby poisons him causing dehydration, cerebral hemorrhage and convulsions. In the midst of painful suffering, the unborn child dies on fire and is expelled from the mother's womb between 24 and 48 hours after the abortion procedure.

4. Abortion by prostaglandins. Prostaglandins are substances that, when injected in the amniotic fluid or administered as a vaginal suppository, they cause contractions typical of childbirth, as a result of which the mother expels the child, already dead or still alive, but unfit for extrauterine life. Such an abortive method takes about 20 hours.

5. Hysterotomy abortion , used in the last trimester of pregnancy, is a surgery like a cesarean section, but this time it is applied against the baby. This is left to die or killed by the abortionist with the umbilical cord itself.

6. Partial birth abortion is the removal of an entire baby. Start by the feet and then remove all the rest of the little body, except the head. To extract it

Machine Translated by Google

Surgeon inserts scissors at the base of the skull, widens the opening, and uses suction to remove it. If he survives, the abortionist will have to kill him, which is why, in the United States, the Legislative Branch – whose competence, in fact and by law, is to legislate – approved a contradictory, but somewhat restrictive, law, providing for imprisonment and a fine for who extracts a live baby and, outside the mother's womb, finishes killing it.

• What is done with aborted babies.

They are… treated like medical waste. There are numerous cases in the US where abortion clinics do not even give the unborn child a dignified destination.

“Commonly, human fetuses are treated like any other tissue when removed from the patient's body. In other words, like medical waste. Most US states require this type of material to be incinerated. When a “medical abortion” is practiced – without resorting to surgical practices, only through the ingestion of medications that expel the fetus – the fetal tissue is usually discarded in the toilet or in the bathroom drain of the abortionist’s own house.”

A human being played privately. This is heinous, criminal, diabolical.

• A final appeal to the reader on the topic.

I hope with all my heart that whoever has had the patience to read this far, understand: abortion is a crime against life! A heinous act against a masterpiece of God. How many more souls will have to suffer for humanity to understand this?

This is certainly a question even of respect and humility. After all, how can we, as His children, think that we have, for whatever reasons, the right to live of a singular and pure soul like that of an unborn child?

How can someone arrive, often out of pure selfishness [I make a point here, in this case I am not referring to cases of rape, despite being against abortion in all cases.] cause so much pain in an innocent being? I do not believe that abortion is just any man's opinion, but a work of the evil one, and as such, it must be rejected as a whole, without exceptions.

Machine Translated by Google

That alone, just this tip of the iceberg, is enough to make many people with knots in their stomachs and, I hope, disgust with the abortionist movement.

In case the reader, for some bizarre reason, believes that this is somehow a right, find out more about who funds the clinics, what babies feel during their last moments and even about the creators of this movement.

Millions and millions of families that will no longer exist, millions and millions of children that will never smile, and why? Because today's society saw no value in them!

Let us be humble, we do not have the right to decide about the life and death of no human being, let alone one who is innocent. I hope with all my heart that you understand, dear reader, what I say here.

The pro-abortion movement is not about a right. The pro-abortion movement is about dragging innocent lives into oblivion. It is a demonic work, a profane right and it is the duty of each one of us to speak out against this abomination.

A request: To the reader who is Catholic, pray for all lost souls, heinously taken by abortion. God bless them.

Well, let's move on to the next topic. Also related to progressivism again…

Chapter VI

Theories of gender, from transsexualism to helicopters

An ironic title, of course, we all agree that transsexuality does not exist.

At this very moment, the reader who has a greater tendency towards progressivism must ask himself why, after all, today's decadent society says that the existence of transsexuality (and perhaps another 50 genders) is indisputable. Of all the means and forms of human creativity, theories about "new genres" are the ones that surprise me the most, I'll take advantage and tell a quick story to put it in context:

Once there was a presentation at my school, we were separated into groups with different themes. It is obvious that most of everything was related to controversial or progressive themes: women's emancipation, racism, LGBT rights, indigenous people... in short, incredibly, everything went well that day. The curious thing was when my father told me about the presentation of the group that was in charge of presenting a work on LGBTs, they said that the symbol at the end of the official name of the movement (LGBTQIA+) represented the other forty-two genders that made up it …

So you wonder if there's any way this could be true, if they could even exist. this amount of genres, for the relief of humanity we can say that this is obviously a contemporary fallacy. Well, then why bother with just one lie? Simple: People are truly believing this… Explain it to me! Where the hell could something like the Ice Cream gender, graysexual or skoliosexual come from. The historic developer of transsexuality theories, John William Money, was a psychologist, sexologist, and author specializing in sexual identity research and gender biology. His work has been celebrated for its supposed innovation and also criticized, particularly with regard to his involvement in David Reimer's sex reassignment. It is this part of her work that I will write here, a rather strong account of the culmination of the consequences of gender theories.

David was a Canadian citizen who had his sexual identity changed without his consent and was raised as a girl after his penis was accidentally destroyed during a circumcision. Money was the psychologist who oversaw her case, reporting that the sexual identity switch was a success. At the age of 38 David committed suicide.

His birth name was Bruce, his twin brother was named Brian. On 27 April 1966, a urologist performed an operation using the unconventional method of cauterization. The procedure did not go as the doctors had planned and Bruce's penis was burned beyond surgical repair. Doctors chose not to operate on the boy, whose phimosis soon disappeared without any surgical intervention.

Bruce's parents took him to Baltimore to see Money. together With other doctors, the child's parents were convinced that sex reassignment surgery would be best for the boy and, at the age of 22 months, an orchidectomy was performed to remove his testicles. Her gender was "redefined" and her parents were instructed to raise the child as a girl, hence the name Brenda. Consultations with the doctor continued for about 10 years, so that the results could be evaluated.

During this time occurred the most disturbing moments about such an experiment, according to the patient's own account, Money forced the twins to rehearse sexual acts involving "pushing movements" with Bruce playing the passive sexual role. As a child he painfully recalled having to "get on all fours" with his brother Brian. In another sexual position, Money forced Bruce to have his legs spread with his brother on top, as well as forcing the children to remove their clothes and engage in genital inspections. On at least one occasion, it was reported that the doctor had taken a photograph of the two children doing these activities. The reason why such procedures were performed was because, according to Money's beliefs, sexual stimulation play in children favored a healthier sexual identity in adult life.

According to the notes of one of Money's former students, Bruce's parents during the annual consultation often lied about the success of the procedure. It was later discovered that the twin brother, Brian, suffered from schizophrenia.

Two children, players in this mad doctor's sadistic game.

Bruce was given estrogen during adolescence to induce breast development. No longer having contact with the family, as visits were suspended, Money did not publish anything more about the case, failing to suggest to the public that the move had not been successful.

Ten years later, Dr.
John Colapinto described that: "While living as Brenda, Bruce did not identify as a girl. He was ostracized and bullied by peers, neither did frilly dresses (which he was forced to wear during the freezing winters in Winnipeg) nor female hormones did him. not feel like a girl". By the age of 13, Bruce was experiencing suicidal depression and told his parents he would commit suicide if they ever made him see Money again.

At the age of 14, Bruce Reimer decided to assume a male gender identity, thus calling himself David.

In addition to a lifelong difficult relationship with his parents, David had of dealing with unemployment and the death of his brother Brian from an overdose of antidepressants in 2002. On May 2, 2004, his wife Jane told him that she wanted a separation. On the morning of May 5, 2004, David went to a grocery store and committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. He was 38 years old...

Did the WHO in all its "wisdom" take that account into account when withdrawing transsexualism from the list of mental illnesses and disorders? I bet no, no study was done, such a decision was made only by pure political pressure in the 90's! Naming the oxen, they are pure scoundrels. As if that weren't enough, let's see some more little data and statistics:

1. 88% of children who have gender dysphoria do not stay the same positions when older.

two. Transsexuals who undergo gender surgery are more likely to commit suicide.

3. Only 21% of transsexuals are able to pass as the opposite sex 4. 53% of mothers of transgender children have Depression Disorder Borderline Personality.

5. 16% of transsexuals have been arrested.

6. The chance of a "male-to-female" transsexual being HIV positive is about 50 times greater than the non-transsexual population.

7. Homosexual practice reduces life expectancy by 20 years, especially in transsexuals, who have a suicide rate of over 42%.

8. The average duration of relationships between them ranges from two to three years, rare cases are long-term. They have, therefore, more than 39 relationships throughout their lives, on average (this is talking about homosexuals) according to the Federación Estatal de Gays e Lésbicas.

Machine Translated by Google

9. According to the CDC, gay men have between 500 and 1000 times more chances of contracting AIDS, practical sodomy being constant among 90% of them, according to a study by the Eastern Psychological Association.

10. About 30% of gay men by age 20 have HIV or will die by the age of 30, according to Dr. Jeffrey Satinover.

11. According to the San Francisco Department of Public Health, 80% of 75,000 registered cases of hepatitis were among homosexuals.

12. In addition to being 14 times more likely to attempt suicide, homosexuals are three times more likely to complete the act, according to the CHRC.

13. In 2007, the UK government, in partnership with the LGBT movement, provided homosexual books with pornographic content in kindergartens and schools for children between 4 and 14 years old.

Anyway, all of the above is proof of how sad and worrying is the rise of the pernicious LGBT movement, encouraged and financed every day to take this obscene lifestyle to the four corners of the world. But why fund something so harmful? Well, because supporting this cause makes money! A lot of money. Have you seen the euphoria of the supporters or supporters of this movement when the big companies launch something with their banner? A generation is increasingly addicted to sex (a tactic I referred to in the chapter on pornography), and they begin to hate everything that represents such an "oppressive and heteronormative" society. Therefore: religion, family and even the body itself becomes the target of this anger. Ask yourself, what drives a man, in his right mind, to have surgery where tons of hormones are injected (be aware of the danger of cancer) and the anatomy itself is disfigured, all because of what he will never manage to be, since it is impossible for someone to change sex. What then can justify such an act? Freedom?

It is neither valid nor moral for a man to pull out an organ in perfect condition and in full operation just because he does not think he is what he is, if mutilating is not a freedom he has. Many people argue that people are born that way, dissatisfied. Incredible how for everything current progressive militants justify their horrendous acts and positions according to personal dissatisfaction...

> • A dissatisfied mother may miscarry! • A man dissatisfied with his body can change it! • A woman dissatisfied with a man can cheat on him! • A husband dissatisfied with his partner can get divorced!

Machine Translated by Google

• Can a disgruntled terrorist kill innocents? • Can a disgruntled politician steal? • Can a dissatisfied man kill? • Can a woman dissatisfied with life commit suicide?

No, in the same way that Adolf Hitler being dissatisfied with the Jews does not have his crimes justified. Do you understand where I'm going? Personal dissatisfactions cannot move an entire society, unless they are fully justifiable and consistent with Sound Doctrine.

Getting to the point I wanted to get to, as I said above, such people (mostly young people) are manipulated, encouraged to rebel against their own body and against the natural law. It ends up being a set of factors, the vultures would not be able to destabilize social harmony with just one poison, a real cocktail of them is needed, several fronts of attack. Drugs are encouraged among youth, feminism among women, pornography among people, abortion among mothers and gender disturbances among society. It is necessary for them to attack every kind of traditional and moral influence in society, they don't care how many lives are lost to such ideologies or movements, it favors them.

Concluding on the theme of the chapter: every kind of supposed genre more than men and women is invention, simple disturbances and even diseases normalized by today's decadent society. I don't say and never will say that the membership of this group is a problem to be eliminated by no means, I just pray that these people are made aware of the problems of these various practices and abandon them altogether. If the reader, even after so much data, still does not understand the danger of the LGBT movement, he has probably already been indoctrinated to alarming levels, I can only invite you to reread and read more about what has been

Personally, I don't hate these people, but the sin they propagate, a pustule of a rotten society. I would just like to make one more comment. Do not blame the person, the individual with this trait is not at fault, it can often be difficult to deal with and, as the great Cardinal Sarah said:

"Is the homosexual condemned to a private life, denying his condition and predestined to be unhappy? No! He, like every baptized Christian, is invited to be holy and, in this path of holiness, he is fully happy!" - Cardinal Robert Sarah.

Machine Translated by Google

What I am criticizing here in this chapter is the LGBT movement and the sin it normalizes, not the individual himself.

Hate sin, hate antichrist.

Hate sin, hate antichrist.

Hate sin, hate antichrist.

A family man who expels or attacks his own child for this reason is just as guilty and a sinner as the homosexual who practices sodomy. The same goes for the father who does not warn his son about the danger of such practices. Again, I ask the reader to pray for the souls of these people, after all, we are all sinners and need prayers.

In addition, the attack on traditional thinking and family organization by different influences is not all. For them, it is still fundamental to destroy another feeling, that of nation and sovereignty of the homeland.

So let's start the next chapter!

Chapter VII

Globalization, submission to globalization

Oh! Globalization! This endless mix of cultures, this inexhaustible exchange of information through tourism. Why worry about national culture? What nonsense, the foreigner is more interesting! To what end should we supply the domestic market with production made here? We can buy everything from outside and much better! What is the purpose of valuing Brazil? We have the United States of America, why!

These are claims you could easily hear from a globalist, or worse, an Americanist.

You may think I'm exaggerating, but in the harshest of truths, this is how most anti-nationalists (globalists) think: "Why produce here what is already being done there?"

Basically, it is also how those who were convinced by their lies, if the objective of those who propagate this model of consumption and society were fully achieved.

This issue is not new in general, submission to the international financial system has been going on for decades and has already been warned several times by great men. Subordinated and victimized are all countries that are not part of the caste of central countries, any movement that comes to oppose the owners of the world and the international financial system is suppressed.

Its main propaganda is consumerist, which permeates less developed countries and urges them to embrace the "delights" of the liberal economy and the globalized world, without borders. It brings up the feeling that his integration into the global economy is inevitable, that only this renunciation of national sovereignty will bring the bounty of the new world to his country. How much bullshit! Neocolonialism!

One point I should make clear: I am not against international trade. The problem is when this trade becomes a political, economic and cultural monopoly, exercised by such commissions and supranational organizations that inhibit any authority and decision-making by nation-states. But the system works like this way: Everything revolves around the interests of the powerful (among them many vultures) and of the developed nations that "seek world peace".

Many reject the idea of economic emancipation of the country itself because, unfortunately, these people themselves are already dependent on or used to foreign things, therefore denying what is produced in their own country. Whether they are dependent on the New York Stock Exchange or the hamburgers of a fast food multinational, these individuals believe that an investment in national production is nothing more than a retrograde and antiquated waste of time.

Let's be frank, when I talk about supporting globalization, I clearly mean the upper-middle class and upwards! Obviously, the poorest worker is not satisfied with being paid $1 an hour in some maquiladora industry on the border between Mexico and the United States of America. Extending our conversation a little, there must be a very high degree of idiocy in a person who really likes Yankee lands.

As the unfortunate speech of the Honorable President of Brazil, Jair Bolsonaro: "My salute to the American flag".

Shame! A country founded and administered by Freemasons, populated by Protestants and built on the blood of indigenous pagans. I share the same thesis of a certain friend of mine, that that is if not the nation of perdition! This does not apply to 100% of its citizens, not at all, but its so-called "Manifest Destiny" is to spread its heinous system all over the world with cultural imperialism. In order to achieve their goals, they launch all kinds of propaganda regarding liberalism on other nations.

I'm sure the pro-US person who reads what I've written here will accuse me of being a socialist or a communist (which I simply am not), but know this one that you are nothing more than a mere hypocrite, if we can use a synonym, a liberal-conservative.
Never confuse real and true nationalism with those pseudo-patriotic manifestations, which could well be accused of stealing the national flag, since the demonstrators carry American and Israeli flags next to it, the latter, a symbol of what is most ignoble about the Earth at present, the (criminal) State of Israel.

If we, as Brazilians, do not have the economic autonomy that we are trying to achieve today, this is largely due to the Anglo-Saxon influence that has asphyxiated our nation for centuries.

Machine Translated by Google

Many people mistakenly call Jair Bolsonaro a patriot, without a doubt, he is the head of rightism in Brazil today. Understand, a liberal will never be a patriot, a liberal is an enemy. If you come across any politician or influencer saying, "We have to privatize this and that, we have to take the state out of the economy!" know that, deep down, it is the denationalization of our resources that he seeks.

Just so you have an idea of how serious the problem is, all the iron ore extracted by Vale in Pará is a monopoly of a Japanese company, Nippon Steel Corporation SA, which exports everything to benefit Japan itself.
Also in Pará, more specifically in the Trombetas River valley, all bauxite extraction from Oriximiná is heavily influenced by Alumínios Canadenses SA (note that both are corporations) which uses a polluting method to transform the ore into aluminum and sends it to Canada itself.

And what remains for us Brazilians? Empty holes in the earth, where once there was power, now remains.

What many call beneficial in this process, in reality, is an assault done openly and in an official manner, where the winners are only the developed countries abroad, which in the end are left with the best technologies and the highest profits. They control, through the influence of global corporations, the entire system. Thanks to globalism, the only thing left for underdeveloped countries is the loss of their sovereignty, the invasion of drugs, the infiltration of pornography and the installation of the so-called maquiladora industries. What a misfortune, isn't it?
To consider all this a beneficial process is ignorance and elitism!

Even eating habits here in Brazil have been heavily modified.
In 1970, everyone ate at home since no fast food restaurants or headquarters of multinationals selling junk food had yet opened. The situation began to change in 1979 when the first McDonald's opened in Brazil. In about 10 years, dozens of franchises had already been opened, not to mention the first malls! The general public began to eat less at home… After a while, transgenic food businesses also appeared, and worse than that: frozen food. Nowadays, at least in the big cities, look in some corner of these miserable malls for a food court that doesn't supply food based on hamburgers, soft drinks and processed foods.

It's proven that that sugar and fat goo that serves in these restaurants is addictive and harmful. Uninformed parents feed all this to their children and nine years old are already overweight and reject any natural, homemade or traditional food. Conveniently, the dominant system not only creates the problem but also the "solution". The fast-paced lifestyle of the family, which today needs the father and mother away from home to pay the bills, no longer have time to cook, they end up consuming and giving their children fast, processed and bad food.

As I said, it may seem futile but it is a reality, here and largely around the world we are encouraged by the media and the food industry to eat laboratory-made products (which we don't know what they contain) instead of homemade or local production. I'll bet you what you want, that young people in big cities today have probably never tried traditional food from another state, for example. Many have not even eaten the ones from their own state! However, everyone is already stuffing themselves with snacks and food prepared in the microwave.

Nor am I going to comment on aspects of contemporary urbanization, this topic it's too tiring and I don't think anyone likes to live in a glass reinforced concrete wall, the return to traditional building styles is a topic to be seriously discussed nowadays. A good sentence by Monteiro Lobato sums up this part of the theme well:

"Do you want some advice? Go discover something on earth and leave men in peace... men change, the earth is unalterable. Go inland, penetrate the interior and observe something profitable. Here in the capital, only You will find taller houses, more crowded streets and things similar to what exists in all modern cities. But when in contact with the earth, you will feel what you cannot feel on paved avenues."

Considering this was written in 1985, you could say he foresaw the future, it really does seem like all major cities are built based on some kind of pre-made blueprint across the world. They are all equally ugly and gigantic (and full of franchises). Everything that is not made of mirrored glass will be abandoned, as well as our historic center here in Rio de Janeiro, a heap of tenements.

In addition to cultural and economic submission to the North Americans, the invasion of Chinese products in our markets and the loss of production capacity and national self-sufficiency is one more of the problems generated by advanced globalization. And it is easy to imagine why, after all, a population that knows and cares little about their own country is more likely to accept outside influence as a good thing.

I think I have given a good overview of the situation, initially disguised as economic integration, gradually advances to political "unity", finally achieving massive influence in culture and territory.

Now let's move on to the next topic.

Chapter VIII

The Death of a Nation. The case of our homeland

"I truly believe that a legion of young people will rise up in my country, warriors, willing to recover that sovereignty that was taken from us." - Enéas Carneiro.

Reject currents of right-wing propaganda like "Olavo is right" and embrace the true propaganda of someone who was certainly one of the greatest nationalists in our country: "Enéas was right".

I am still amazed by the capacity and intelligence of Enéas Carneiro, to be honest, I believe that 30 years ago he understood most of the problems and consequences that our country would suffer today.

Assuming that our policy is currently dominated by the international finance and Freemasonry, it is clear why so many anti-nationalist measures are taken. My dear reader would be impressed with the number of Masonic and conniving politicians, this is clearly seen by the lack of anti-Masonic politicians in Brazil.

The national flag is no longer revered, we no longer remember the historical figures of our nation, the Brazilian Anthem is no longer sung. Negligence and mockery towards our own history is constantly propagated in the media. By the way, what about the media content itself nowadays?
Composed only of baseness, hypocrisies and obscenities shown on television sets. It even seems that our people no longer live in society, but in groups.
Where did your children who didn't flee the fight get lost? Blessed by God with so many beauties, so many resources! How do we let lethargy almost take us over? The answer is simple, because carnival and barbecue are enough for people who were induced to develop a mongrel complex. Times of bread and circuses surround us and nobody stands up to do anything about it.

Our nation is bombarded every day by everything that sucks: funk, drugs, consumerism, atheism, countless sects, ideologies that divide us into like-minded parties, disease, and even food acting as poison (GMOs and the green revolution came first from Uncle Sam). Notice that these are the seeds sown that corrode our sense of nationhood and make us feel like merely a people helpless by the state.

We are at the mercy of foreign influences as our own compass breaks down, rats run wild, crime spreads as they turn us into a mass of illiterates. Rot and anti-nationalism are so instilled daily that they end up becoming the rule.

In reality, there was a constant war between foreign forces and good. in these lands, the first always aiming at the normalization of insanity. Divorce, adultery, atheism, corruption, everything normalized! Even disrespect for the nation is valid, who has never heard a third party saying that Brazil is rubbish.
Don't pray, Brazil is not garbage! It may be covered in filth at the moment, abandoned, but underneath lies the fairest, richest, most moral land in the world. If you want to complain about something, take a look at those who reduce us to these conditions, those are indeed to make you want to vomit.

Some say they are ashamed of being Brazilian because of politicians... pathetic! Compatriot, it's not because those who should do right, do wrong, that you have to be ashamed of being born here. God put you here for a reason, do the best you can, don't be a coward who runs abroad in search of cheaper things. Before you ask, yes, I've heard arguments like that!

Now let's face it, we were born in a land of extremes, we have at first view, all the reasons to be ashamed: corruption, public neglect, poverty, political incompetence... however, looking more closely, not for the ills, but for the potential of what this country once was, there we see a Brazil that can achieve much greater glories than those of the past, much greater than those already achieved by great leaders around the world.

Enemies came with capital in their hands, they bought our leaders and our system. They demonically envy our wealth, they want to destroy our peace and stability, they don't want a nation of Brazilians! Let's wake up, let's listen to the homeland that is dying so much! With bread and circuses they stuffed us, and in the gutter we were left to die. But they don't know the true strength of these people, for Christ we will rise! For Christ we will build a great Brazil, a nation reborn! I cannot admit that the enemy feels over the old flame of our freedom that has gone out.

- An invincible people!
- Unconquerable territory!

I'm happy when I see cases that stand out from the chaos, people who do good. I like to think that, in the future, I will be able to make some contribution, even a minimal one, to my country. Helping to strengthen our so precarious justice, that would be my goal.

You who are reading, establish something to be done for you.

"Be who God intended you to be and you will set the world on fire."

Let us install all things in Christ, for he has blessed us with this land!
We are blessed, have faith!

Chapter IX

The religious indifferentism

masculine noun

1. Attitude of systematic indifference, esp. on matters of religion or politics. mq
2. INDIFFERENCE ('apathy').

"Indifferentism, in the Roman Catholic faith, is the belief that there is no religion or philosophy superior to the other. The Catholic Church attributes indifferentism to atheist, materialist, pantheistic, and agnostic philosophies."

Once, my geography teacher told us a curious thing, according to her, God would be equally present in all religions. For her: "Each religion would be the most appropriate way for a given cultural group to connect with God".

That is, according to this conception, the Catholic Church would be on the same foot as equality and validity than any shamanism in Africa. This is the kind of thinking that, for me, is the most pernicious that humanity can produce, the belief that religion is a human creation, an often individual way of connecting with God (as if some "hippie" who takes drugs was connecting to some higher power). The religious indifferentism that is propagated by the liberal doctrine overthrew the officially Catholic states and established the lowest attack against Christianity, secularism.

The Secular State is just another excuse (with another name) for the Atheist State. Now, if a state does not recognize the sovereignty of God and acts against the law of that same God, it does not believe in any consequence, it is an atheist. As Pope Leo XIII said: "Tolerating equally all religions is the same as atheism".

This entire manifesto, this entire positioning that I present here is submitted to judgment of sound Catholic doctrine. When I talk about drugs, abortion, pornography, gender theories, liberalism, freemasonry, communism… I am obligatorily against it because I am Catholic, because I know with absolute certainty that there is a divine and immutable law that manifests itself in the wills of the Holy Church. More than a mere political or social issue, it is wrong not because it displeases me, but because it displeases God! Everything that goes against the will of God must be fought.

Going back to the heart of the matter, when there is a thought that reduces divine laws to mere archaic traditions, this must be vehemently opposed, destroyed. When it is said that God is in all religions, it is also said that every type of morality, whatever the religion, is valid.

Morality is unique, or it is nothing. A set of moral laws X is often opposed to a set of Y moral laws, so how to equal them in validity? There is simply no way.

No problem regarding our country can be solved thanks to a messianic politician or some completely new ideology. Religious indifferentism disguised as religious "tolerance" is an error, one of the first steps towards the degradation of society.

Let's continue.

Chapter X

Contempt for the little things

I believe that another important point is the call to value small things. A big mistake in our contemporary society is the thought that everything that is not driven by great and scientific technology is not good. There is, for example, a huge international uproar over the construction of a particle collider as if this were something of paramount importance, when in reality this is neither necessary nor extremely urgent, it is something completely superficial.

There is also among us the thought that something only deserves to be valued if is expensive, innovative, unpublished or scarce, and mainly, created by human hands, when in fact it is just the opposite! Honestly, we men are very small, we are minuscule compared to the true grandeur of Creation, that is where true greatness resides.

Our inventions are tiny in reality, they can be useful, but in the end they are mere comforts that we give ourselves before the immutable law that everything acts according to the will of God.

Maybe we should care less about the inauguration of the most technological space rocket ever built. Perhaps we should admire more the beauty in the grandeur of small and ordinary things, precisely because it is a miracle that they happen.

Think for a moment what a miracle it is for a girl, whoever she is, to give birth to one more child, one more life, imagine how incredible it is for a child filled with creativity to build a "castle" somewhere in their own room, or what a beautiful moment it is when a grandfather holds his first grandchild.

Finally, think of the sweet, contagious laugh of a baby uttering his first words... at this moment, at this very moment, something really great is happening there, not inside a particle collider.

Most things are a waste of effort. A government will not be good while it seeks a "greatness" represented by pharaonic works, these works can be erected, but if not fulfilled the logic that follows are walls erected in vain.

A really good ruler is one whose final target is the contagious smile of a well-cared-for baby who has just uttered his first words. A baby will only be well taken care of if he is cared for in a clean environment, he will only be cared for in a clean environment if his mother is around to do it, his mother can only take good care of him if he can stay at home instead of working outside, this will only happen if your husband owns the house (contrary to what a user banker wants) and in turn, he will only own your house if he works for it.

Interestingly, this manifesto deals with two crucial points: the modern rot and the destruction of home, domesticity, and the beauty of little things. Definitely those who appreciate life more calmly and humbly are happier...

Chapter XI

about democracy

The only possible outcomes for this system are its self-suppression, its political stagnation or its complete destruction by forces opposed to it. There is no example of any country that has "fully" embraced democracy and not had its culture perverted by the infiltration of liberal degeneration. The cradle where this current contemporary utopia was constituted, France, has already shown itself to be trapped in the downward spiral of secularism and secularization. The so-called modern democratic apex, the United States of America, is an exporting den of perversion and death, highly destructive in the short, medium and long term.

An excerpt from an old Spanish Carlist song already spoke of a cruel but great truth about democracy:

Democracy in our homeland entered

Breaking the cements of our tradition

Democracy in our homeland entered

Breaking the foundations of our tradition

So my dear reader wonders why democracy has failed, the answer to that is very simple: The supposed power that comes from the people is a profane and fallible power. There is no legitimacy coming from the masses. The so-called "people" is unfortunately a very fluid concept and subject to alterations and influences from third parties. Therefore, their wills do not have true reflection and always end up being a herd's will. There is no so-called will of the people, stating this is ignorance of the true force that legitimizes temporal power, which will be seen later.

In this regard, let's talk now about the oligarchies, who control the mass controls the system. The latter, however, cannot survive without such oligarchies. Money is needed, capital to sustain the entire political apparatus. But who would have enough capital for such an undertaking? Those who control access to capital will be the princes of this world. Plutocracy supplants democracy naturally, the latter suddenly becomes an instrument of the former and the entire population sees this coup as something natural, as there is a false impression of political participation, of democratic purity.

The newly established power needs the means to keep the masses in check, the vultures need their machinery to work. And to this equation we add the media, the purchased media. The media monopoly is formed so quickly that in a few years only three or four major stations are established to control the opinion of the same people. Finally, everything I've pointed out since the beginning of the booklet connects now: To keep "democracy" working, you have to break the influence of all natural hierarchy. For the people to have political orgasms every four years, it is necessary for political life to invade and supplant domestic and family life. The system swallows the family nucleus itself.

The feeling of domesticity dies, traditions suffer, happiness fades away.
fade away. This brings us to a phrase, attributed to the great Englishman GK Chesterton:

"He (the man) always got lost on the way...but now he has lost his address."

For now, being able to vote for something that will or will not change your life is true democratic power, the "voice of the masses" as many say. However, do not think that I despise them and do not wish them well, on the contrary, the beauty of these people and their ability to relate to family and community is spectacular, this is something that undoubtedly has to be maintained, but democracy won't do that.

Understand, democracy is one of the masks of a corrupt and oppressive system, anticlerical and unnatural behavior that has perverted society for decades. This sustains and is at the same time controlled by the plutocracy. There is no distinction between them! This is how the self-suppression of democracy takes place, which will (unfortunately) lead to the suppression of society itself. It is born from a hollow seed, the supposed power that justifies it is empty, so it is filled by those who have the necessary resources to fill it.

What would be the justification for the existence of a government then? Simple: The so-called Temporal (or terrestrial) Power responds directly to the Divine Power, its acts must be guided by the only immutable force, by the only truth (at least it should be like that).

Each one of us begins to be as God always is.

The popular will is simply expendable for the taking of most decisions, their conditions as human people must certainly be taken into account, but solutions are unlikely to come out of their circumstances.
Basically, everything that the people can decide, God already decided and expressed His Will a long time ago (or at least already indicated the way for). What good are parliamentary committees involving discussions about abortion if there is already a decision about it in the canon of the Holy Church? And this is just one example of several that I can cite to support my thesis.

Political stagnation is almost visible in most countries called democratic or in a state of advancement in this ideal. Simple and often obvious decisions that would require an energetic force to make them are prolonged by months, years or even decades of incessant debates and discussions between men often unfit for a mere analysis of alternatives.

This is magnificently expressed in the current composition of the Brazilian National Congress, where men without any preparation decide the course of the richest nation on the planet.

When I say that democracy may have its imminent end through its destruction by opposing forces, I literally mean "destruction" and not a mere end, as a system and an idea so deeply rooted in society will need an event even more monumental as the French Revolution to be abolished.

I believe it is more appropriate that this does not occur because of the will of genocides or who knows by the oligarchy itself. I'm sure something a little better will come of it if the system is pushed into the abyss by truth advocates and not conspiracy fanatics. You will understand at the end of the book that I am not conniving with an immediate blow, but with individual change. I hope that by changing ourselves, the system will lose much of its influence, thus being pushed further and further to the edge of the precipice and then, when we have strength enough, we can finally give this feathered and dying beast the final push.

Power comes from the people in the same way that a baby gives birth to its mother. Both statements are a complete inversion of reality and only a broken brain would consider this to be true, however, we well know how the condition of brains in modernity is...

From capitalism to liberalism, from socialism to communism, from anarchism to anarcho-primitivism, from national-socialism to eco-fascism, from extraterrestrial utopias to transhumanism! How many ideologies and lines of thought exist around the world, it often sounds like a bad joke when we hear that there are confident followers of posadism, or worse, of the supposed anarcho-feminism.
A good part of these new collective daydreams don't even deserve to be mentioned here, they serve more as a reason to laugh, however, among all of them, we can highlight two main ones, two "mother ways" of many of these nonsense: The first way, liberalism and, the second way, communism. The bourgeois utopia and the red menace, two lines of thought so materialistic that it is not surprising that they have been so condemned by the Holy Catholic Church. I take advantage and highlight an interesting relationship between a phrase attributed to Gustavo Barroso and another to Mayer Rothschild:

"Liberalism and communism are but the positive and negative of the same photographic plate." - Gustavo Barroso.

"No matter who the people vote for, they will always vote for us." -Mayer Rothschild.

The first makes clear an unalterable truth, that liberalism and communism are just two sides of the same coin. The second also leaves us with a great truth, that throughout history not only has the relationship between the first and second ways become clearer, but that they were greatly influenced by the same group in common. Divide and conquer, that's the tactic, the population is divided into speeches, in theory, diametrically opposed, one always preaching to be the opposite of the other when in fact, they are two different paths to the same end.

Capitalism initiates the enslavement of the worker and the usurpation of the model of life for the bourgeoisie, this finally paves the way for an equally worthy evil, socialism, which initiates a slavery solidified in the state model. The destruction of the family and religiosity is a resultant cause of the first and rule of the second. One seeks to subvert society for profit and consumption, the other seeks the same for power and destruction of autonomy.

Returning to something that has already been said: Religion is the basis of all morality, the final objective will always be the Social Reign of Our Lord Jesus Christ, based on the Social Doctrine of the Church.

I am a man whose political position is more in line with the Third Position, an alternative to the first and second ways, but all of my thinking can only and will only be governed and governed by this motto:

Instaurare omnia in Christo!

Install all things in Christ!

Any other ideal, however far-fetched it may be, that does not have this end, will simply not be worth supporting.

I would also like to highlight a position of mine: Fascism (Italian) it has very interesting points, however, its statolatry must be vehemently repudiated, since it does not align with Sound Doctrine.

As I was saying, it is no coincidence that the same marks of these two ideological systems exist all over the globe, in all electoral periods around the globe, the same nonsense of fleeing from the right or fleeing from the left. Misery is usually the right outcome for both choices. The whole circus is set up, the people divide to vote as if they were waging a war for the country, when in fact they are delivering it in an unhealthy policy of division.

Neither of these systems can be good, in short, both reduce humans to numbers. The only difference is that in one of them they are numbers in a multinational spreadsheet, in the other they are in the intricacies of the five-year plans of the state.

But what about you, will you continue to let yourself be reduced to just a number? Fight!

Chapter XIII

Of the princes of this world

"We can't approve this move, we can't stop them from going to Jerusalem, but we can never favor them. The land of Jerusalem, if not always holy, was sanctified by the coming of Jesus Christ. I, as head of the Church, cannot say otherwise. The Jews did not recognize Our Lord, so we cannot recognize the Jewish people... the Jewish religion was the foundation of ours, but it has been superseded by the teachings of Christ and we cannot grant it any validity. The Jews, who should have been the first to recognize Jesus Christ, have not done so until today." - Saint Pius X.

Anyone at the end of this booklet must already have understood who the vultures are that I mentioned so much throughout the work, who are those who make up a significant portion of the tycoons, bankers, usurers, metacapitalists, in short, those who control and govern our society. decadent society.
Therefore, before continuing, I want to clarify for all intents and purposes that here I will not be apologizing for genocide, anti-Semitic regimes or any conspiracy hatred. I'm definitely not anti-Semitic, my only goal here, as I've said before (several times) is to try to open the eyes of anyone willing to see what I want.
Show.

Reflect now on everything I've covered in this booklet: pornography, LGBT, drugs, feminism, abortion, globalization and its consequent cultural invasion.
Do you, my dear reader, really think it reasonable to believe that all this is for some reason the result of chance? From a coincidence?

Well, I don't think so. It is almost intuitive to understand that most likely there are entities, groups, people involved and engaged in the management of resources channeled to these movements, to these perverse ideals.

The vultures' objective is to destabilize the tree (allusion to the beginning of the booklet). What better way to do this than by shaking the moral pillars of our society?

I must quote a 1936 article published by the weekly Le Revéil du Peuple about statements debunked by the London-based Catholic Gazzete . Such an article reveals information from secret meetings of the Masonic organization of the B'nai B'rith.

"As long as there is among the Gentiles any moral conception of the social order, and, as long as every religion, every patriotism, every dignity is not abolished, our reign on earth cannot come… We still have a long way to go before destroying our main enemy, the Catholic Church. For this reason, we spare no efforts to successfully attack the foundations of the Church.

We spread the spirit of revolution and false liberalism among all nations goim, to persuade them to distance themselves from their faith, to begin to be ashamed of professing and practicing their religion, to stop obeying the commandments of their Church.

We got a lot of them to become atheists, we persuaded even more to brag about being descended from apes (Darwinism). We were the ones who hammered into their heads new theories that were impossible to implement, such as communism, socialism and anarchism. They all serve our purposes.

We were following the instructions of our leaders who spoke wisely: make some of our children cardinals and bishops to destroy the Church. We are the fathers of all revolutions, including those that turn against us. We managed to destroy most of the European thrones. The rest will share their fate soon...

Russia has already accepted our rule. France with its Masonic government is in our power. England, dependent on our finances, is at our heels.

We put our hope in the destruction of the Catholic Church in Protestantism. Spain and Mexico are two tools in our hands. Many other countries, including the United States, are already subordinated to our plans.

Most of the world's press is under our control. we do our best to incite hatred against the Catholic Church."

The following excerpt is taken from the New York Journal, Freiheit, on January 10, 1937:

"According to Judaism, the pope is the enemy of the Jewish people only because he is the leader of the Catholic Church. Judaism is in opposition to Christianity in general and the Catholic Church in particular."

One more article gentlemen:

"On May 8, 1920, the then prestigious London newspaper The Times published a summary of the famous plan for world domination, which has been cataloged since 1906 in the British Museum, under code 3926d17. controversy around the subject. Let's see the summary of The Times:

- First: They existed and continue to exist, for many centuries, secret Jewish political organizations.
- Second: The spirit of these organizations is based on a hatred traditional and eternal to Christianity and a tyrannical ambition to dominate the world.

- Third: The objective pursued through the centuries is the destruction of the national states and their replacement by international Jewish rule.
- Fourth: The method employed to weaken and destroy the existing political groupings, consists of introducing dissolving ideas with a carefully dosed destructive force, ranging from liberalism to radicalism, from socialism to communism, even to anarchy. During this period the Jews will remain protected from these destructive doctrines.

"We will promote liberalism to the Gentiles, but on the other hand, we will hold our nation under absolute rule. From the depths of the abyss of anarchy into which the world will be thrown, and in response to the lamentations of maddened humanity, this will only get cold logic. , wise and tyrannical of a King's Government of the race of David, which shall appear in due time."

Machine Translated by Google

- Fifth: The political dogmas established and developed by Europe Christian science, the statesman and the politician are on the same level as the contempt that the Elders of Zion have for them. For them state science is a secret art of a higher order, which is acquired only through traditional training communicated only to a small number of the elect in the refuge of some hidden sanctuary.

"Political problems are not of a nature to be left within the reach of the common man, the only ones who can understand them are, as we have already stated, the leaders who have been directing these matters for several centuries."

- Sixth: According to this conception of political art, the masses are like herds of cattle and the politicians who rule the gentiles (adventitias out of the revolt, incompetent and blind) are like puppets whose strings are managed by the hidden hands of the Elders of Zion. These puppets are, in general, corrupted and almost always incapable people, who easily give in to flattery or threats and submit themselves out of fear to blackmail, working for the benefit of Jewish rule without even realizing it.

- Seventh: The press, the theater, the stock exchange, science, the laws themselves, all this is in the hands of those who own the gold. They have the means to produce confusion, chaos in public opinion, the demoralization of youth, the stimulation of vices among adults and, if necessary, they know how to prosper among the Gentiles, instead of the idealistic aspirations of Christian civilization, the lust for money, adding in them materialistic skepticism and cynical appetite for pleasure.

A central point of this entire booklet is that such ailments that cause distress among our people are not mere coincidence or simple discomforts in our time. A sin to be promoted in isolation is something that unfortunately has always happened, however, several together having the same objective, in the form of movements and with many resources, it is evident that there are one or more groups involved, it is a fact that something is happening. An entire society submerging in sin is not an adversity, it is such a catastrophe!

Machine Translated by Google

This becomes even clearer if we look at a historical context. Let's go back to 1789, during the French Revolution, this intense conflict against tradition, paved by the Protestant Reformation, raised the heads of the greatest evils against moral society. Economic and social liberalism, democracy as it is presented to us, the fall of European monarchies, unbridled republicanism, savage capitalism, the secular and anticlerical state, even communism manages to be one more of those rebellious children of the Revolution. The worms that corrode the foundations of society.

That perfidious rebellion, that modern and retarded system that holds the hegemony of everything. Media, entire governments and multinationals subordinated to vested interests of some ideology or economic system. We cannot blame all the world's problems on Cultural Marxism as the rightists do! The strings that control the puppets are agile and usually don't leave a knot untied.

Power for power's sake, money as a means.

The princes of this world are not only "Jews" or Zionists (Reiterate: the Zionist elite, who believe in the superiority of the supposed chosen people), they are also Freemasons, atheists and modernists. In this way, it is not plausible to blame a group just as many conspiracists do, linking too much and without any logic all or any problem in the world to a kippah, this question has already grown beyond that! The big vultures, those who move the key pieces (George Soros with his Open Society, the Rockefeller family, the Rothschilds, among others) participate in more reclusive groups, but obviously, not every billionaire is a member of this "international Jewry" " or the "apron gang" (as a friend of mine refers to Freemasons).

If you still have doubts about this topic, do some research on the Open Society and its investments in the abortion industry, feminism or the Black Lives Matter movement.

An example close to us from Brazil would be Jorge Paulo Lemann, the most rich in the country, who is not even Brazilian by origin. His foundation, Estudar, finances scholarships for students with less access to income in order to study at Harvard. With a few contracts here and a few fine print there, ideological indoctrination becomes the rule and this gentleman now has dozens of young and extremely progressive deputies in his hands. Imagine this happening in other parts of the world, Soros, for example, already has a project for his own university.

There are groups that blame this progressivism on the Frankfurt School, allegedly funded by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. I personally detest communists, but blaming a dead enemy for something literally founded by vultures and long funded by the CIA is ignorance. Since I mentioned the Frankfurt school, which undoubtedly in its time promoted progressivism, I would like you to later on your own search for a common characteristic in all its creators: Theodor Adorno, Max Horkheimer, Franz Neumann, Friederich Pollock and Otto Kirchheimmer are some, it is intuitive to deduce what this characteristic would be.

Those who talk a lot about theories of Soviet espionage and cultural Marxism, usually they are nothing more than members of the plans of another English banker together with his friends, who sign with three dots.

The purpose of this entire group is power. Above money, they already have that. mountains, the vultures wish to rule sovereigns in their unholy realm. As I said at the beginning of the booklet, there is one major obstacle to your plans: the Church, tradition, and the core of society, the family unit. All of their plans are aimed at diminishing and attacking the influence of these pillars, allowing for a swift attack against each nation's culture.

Each of the tricks adopted by them aims at this, submitting each individual in this world to a culture indifferent to its regionalities and mass consumption. A destructive tolerance against evil is what corrodes all that is good.

Under the bastion of false freedom they planted their accursed flag above each culture, reducing them to nothing. It seems to me that blindness is absolute, with the exception of very few people... that's why I feel the need to write all of this, even though very few people read it and even fewer admit that I didn't lie in the course of the work.

There is no way I can tolerate something that intends to destroy everything I cherish and love, everything that worked in human history. For this reason, everything I have explained so far, I am effectively completing my manifesto now, a gesture that I truly believe will not be in vain. Nothing that happens in this world is by chance, everything has a reason.

The forms of evil can change over time, sometimes more or less effective, but its profane architect is always the same. Your puppets can be different, more or less powerful, however, the fingers that control them are always the same. Who is he who controls the princes of this world but the greatest enemy of Sumo Bem? Who is more interested in the collapse of souls if not the one who fell first? Who is the serpent that spits venom everywhere if not the evil one himself?

Starting from this point, and at the same time ending with it, the unfolding of my book can be ended with a master knot. The cause of all evil comes from a spiritual force (which uses worldly means to lose souls), the battle of the civilization of life against the civilization of death is a spiritual war.

The war that matters most above all wars, because if we lose it, we lose what matters most: the Salvation that was deserved and offered to us by the shedding of Our Lord's blood. Giving in to sin, however small, is a victory for the civilization of death. Every sin is a stab at Our Lord on the Cross.

But if, on the one hand, evil (in the strict sense of the term) does not happen by chance, the same goes for good. If there are emissaries of the evil one, one can be sure that there are also valiant warriors for good.

Good will win, no matter how much evil makes more noise.

The Immaculate Heart of Mary will triumph, no matter how many profess to the contrary.

I think this is beautiful, even if we suffer, if we remain firm in the Faith, in the end we will live fully happily in eternity.

Therefore, I now begin my final remarks and I hope that all this exposition made so far has planted the seed of truth in your head, dear reader. Let's start the next chapter...

Chapter XIV
For all that is good, fight!

What then would be Manifest Based's primary function? The manifesto's primary function is to expose a perspective not widely accepted by society today, that modernity has undoubtedly failed. It's making it clear that the problems we didn't want to solve in the past have grown to such an extent now that we dream of what the world was like before. It's remembering that the national movements that we silenced around the globe in the past are now needed.

We are currently living in a silent battle, a war between the civilization of life and the civilization of death.

I now humbly turn to everyone who reads these words: You must no doubt feel and sense that there is something wrong with the world, much more than sins, they have always been among us, I mean this pernicious rebellion , to this appreciation of wrong, to this incessant desire that the world never achieve peace.

I allude now to a phrase of a holy martyr of the holocaust, St. Maximiliano Maria Kolbe. The same man once said, wisely, that the greatest sin of the 20th century was indifference, coincidence or not, he is also the greatest sin of the 21st century... the struggle in favor of traditional values, in the face of the defense of faith and the homeland.

The excessive appreciation of materialism, the exaltation of individualism, greed and greed, all this and much more today is an intrinsic part of our society. There is no more "we" in everyday life, only "I" is present. The nation as a whole is no longer taken into account, if one group (an elite) wins, so much for the rest! Capital no longer acts in favor of the homeland, but the homeland that is obliged to act in favor of capital.

Amid all this widespread disaster, we only have one certainty, one truth we can hold on to: Faith in Jesus Christ, only she can save us. Our Lord needs true warriors, each one ready to risk everything, including his own life, in defense of the Truth.

Machine Translated by Google

He needs you and me to turn away from this worldly corruption. We must seek holiness, a correct life aligned with the faith of our grandparents! Christ died for each one of us, we must fight for true freedom, for God we must live and die.

"Every man dies, but not every man truly lives."

Let's go back to remembering our land, our beloved country, Brazil, indisputably blessed by the Creator. We have everything to be great, so why are we really not? Your actions, even if small, if moved by the will of God, have the power to light up the world. As much as the world is sunk in darkness, be the light, as much as everyone does evil, be the exception!

"Wrong remains wrong even if everyone does it; right remains right even if no one else does."

If everyone in our nation did right, above all the evil that afflicts us, above all that is propagated and disseminated, surely, we would have already become the greatest civilization that planet Earth has ever seen. And I'm not being hyperbolic when I say that! Something that disgusts me is hearing a Brazilian mock his own country and his own people, it saddens me deeply, these people lack that nationalism present in phrases like this, by Siqueira Campos:

"To the homeland we must give everything without asking for anything."

I truly believe what I say here, we are blessed, we should be grateful for being born in these lands. Therefore, we need to overflow this gratitude, this love for the homeland, wanting the best for it even if nobody wants it. The others who have not yet been lost will follow us.

In this manifesto I am not proclaiming a new miraculous ideology, a new thought in which I am a kind of leader. Alert for the obvious only, we are slaves in our own lands and it cannot go on like this. I draw attention to the issue of nationalism because everything we are experiencing in Brazil is a reflection of how carelessly we have treated the protection of the homeland and the defense of its true faith, the Roman Catholic. If we exchange values as a whole for any financial garbage, what salvation will we have? If abortion is tolerated, what right?

Machine Translated by Google

do we have peace? A nation cannot sleep knowing its children are being killed in cold blood.

I carry within me the desire for a new Brazil, unified under the cross of your true faith, with Christ again in his rightful place, reigning and guiding the new Brazilian state with its citizens on the path to eternity. Here I stand against the depravity of Christian values, against all false ideologies that divide the people and foreign influences that subvert the nation.

The cornerstone of my entire positioning is the Social Reign of Our Lord Jesus Christ. For this, to put an end to all kinds of depravity, it is necessary to set fire to the modern world, a real counter-revolution, not to create something new, but to restore! It is necessary to put an end to the system of capital concentration, the family must remain intact, in this way everything that is against it must be broken and condemned to perish. The tyrants who rule over us and want to destroy it must fall! Capitalism, socialism, false doctrines, false kings and false prophets must all perish. I use the thinking of philosophers of the past, not looking to create something new, but to restore what was good that was taken from us! Then:

"So strong is the tradition that future generations will dream of what they never experienced."

Literally nothing I said is of any use if you are a corrupted man, it's no use wanting the unholy power to fall if you've already fallen into it yourself, you're stuck with it! So let's get things straight, save your soul first and then aim for something real for the nation or for others. I very much doubt that anyone reading this is truly exempt from worldly corruption, not that anyone is, but it's just unlikely. So, before you go to war against the rot, look at yourself and see if you really are not part of this mud. Does it seem complicated? It is not. Honestly, I think we've all been introduced to this question, you can't fight something you're a part of.

By writing this manifesto I was able to reflect on myself and on my attitudes as a nationalist, and especially as a Catholic. I sincerely hope that this self-reflection reaches a few more people who have an open mind to read what I wrote. I don't know you and you will probably never know me either, but I think we all go through similar situations to some extent.
Know that I will pray for you, unknown reader, not because you are reading my manifesto, but because we are sinners and need prayer. I hope I can help at least even a soul, making him see how bad these vices normalized by the current system are, that behind all this there is an evil goal.

Finally, I end my writing here, appealing for us to learn from the mistakes of the past, preserving its good pillars of support to guarantee stability in the future, through faith and nationalism. Taking advantage of an excerpt from our national anthem: Peace in the future and glory in the past!

This manifesto is signed by me alone, however, I hope it will be supported by all those who believe in the truth. As Dom Pedro II would say, may God grant me these last two wishes, peace and prosperity for Brazil. I hope I have fulfilled my role here, that the Virgin Mary intercedes with God for us.

Hail Eternal Rome!

Save Brazil!

Long live Christ the King!
